1 Devin's bouquet was made up of white roses, lisianthus and sweet peas with maidenhair fern and white feathers. It was finished with lace from her mother's wedding dress and a four-leaf clover pin. 2 Once they decided to get married in Boston, the Boston Public Library was at the top of Devin and Pat's list of venues. "When we went to sign the contract over a year in advance, there were only two dates available in 2012!" she recalls. 3 Watercolor elements designed by New York City-based illustrator and artist Happy Menocal were incorporated into all the stationery, giving it a whimsical and summery feel. 4 Urns overflowing with purple (the bride's favorite color!), white and blue florals marked an altar in the library's courtyard.

5 Devin enlisted the help of one of her friends to find her bridesmaid dresses. After trying on “so many different dresses and styles,” they settled on two in an eggplant shade that they felt would look good on all the girls. 6 Purple lighting was used to give the reception room a “festive glow.” 7 To incorporate some references to literature, each centerpiece was displayed atop stacks of vintage books. Votives and bowls of fresh cut fruit completed the look.
